Comments on Performance refer to £ Sterling unless otherwise stated.

Whilst markets continued to perform strongly in November the Fund's net asset value only increased by 2.7%. The Fund's ARIN positions produced a negative contribution of 2.5% and the high cash weighting held back relative performance. Most of the remaining investments generated positive returns. Porsche was the best performer over the month producing an attribution of 0.9% as the stock extended its powerful recovery from the September low point. Other notable performers during the month were New Look, Gericom and Paragon. All three of these companies delivered results in November that exceeded consensus earnings expectations.

Portfolio Activity

As at 30 November the Fund was 61% invested in 51 shares. We added one new holding to the portfolio during the month and increased the weighting in Puma following a meeting in Germany with the company's management. Two ARIN positions were closed, reducing the number of open ARIN positions to 12.

Outlook

We still do not bank on a sustained recovery in markets. Periodic bouts of liquidity fuelled optimism are likely, but quantifying the depth and duration of the downturn in corporate profitability is an issue of much greater consequence for investors.

The sharp rally of the past ten weeks has resulted in valuations again becoming stretched in the technology and telecom sectors of the market. We do not intend to place investors' capital at risk by chasing every twist and turn in stock market sentiment. Our sole investment criterion remains the identification of attractively valued and high quality small companies. This is a constant challenge but it is the strategy best suited to meeting the Fund's absolute return objective.

Following significant infrastructure investments over the past six months the destiny of the Fund's performance is more within our control than ever before. We believe that the outlook for the Fund in 2002 is promising.

We would like to wish all of our investors a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.
